

SUCCESS STORY

HEROES FOR ALL

It seems these days that super hero movies are being made at a hurricane speeds. From X-men to Green Lantern, we see images of screen heroes swooping in to save cities from their arch nemeses or end of the world scenarios. But these fictional heroes, with all their fancy gadgets and explosive scenes, cannot compare (in our minds) to the heroes that Outdoors for All sees on an almost daily basis.

Our heroes don't jump in a phone booth to change into their hero costume. They sport their super hero garb every day as they walk around our city. In fact a super hero could be sitting right next to you at work or in your class. They are everywhere.

Our heroes don't have fancy utility belts with ray guns or grappling hooks. They come already equipped with rock climbing harnesses, ropes, bikes, goggles, helmets, snow pants and jackets.

Our heroes don't always have the wealth of the Bruce Wayne's of the world. Our heroes tend to live within their means, but yet still find ways to donate or attend numerous events in support of a cause they care very deeply about.

Our heroes can't fly off into the sunset after saving the day (well...at least not that we have witnessed). But our heroes...they can do something better than flying. Our heroes transform lives through the power of outdoor recreation.

Outdoors for All is fortunate enough to be surrounded with a very powerful, committed, giving, compassionate community of volunteers, donors, participants and partners. Our volunteers combined put in over 40,000 hours of their time on an annual basis. Our thousands of donors and partners provide resources, funding and support to make our mission possible. Our participants share their stories, their dreams and are role models to so many individuals with disabilities that are in our communities. All of these people are true, living, non-fictional super heroes.

Although this film may not be a full length feature film with million dollar special effects, this video gives you just a taste of the super heroes we are surrounded with every day. Enjoy!
