

SUCCESS STORY

RENTALS & ASSESSMENTS

We're now able to offer a whole new dimension of adaptive recreation programs, thanks in large part to support that we've received from the Thomas H. Maren Foundation and the Fairweather Foundation. Specifically from our Magnuson Park program office we have the staff and equipment available on-site to offer expanded equipment rentals and privatized consultations for participants with disabilities and their families when THEY want to get out and recreate – not just when we may have a regular activity scheduled.

One participant who has profited from these services at our new base camp at "The Brig" is participant Bret Hart. Bret is pictured below in the red t-shirt. He's a survivor of Traumatic Brain Injury / TBI. Brent now uses a power wheelchair and can no longer walk.

Why is Bret's wheelchair empty? Because he didn't need his wheelchair that day – because he was able to go out cycling again! Bret was not only renting the hand crank cycle, but he was also receiving individualized support to learn how to ride the through an appointment that he had set up with program coordinator Connor Inslee.

This new base camp at "The Brig" helps us to begin to offer participants like Bret the right kinds of support, skilled consultation and access to adaptive equipment that they need to successfully get out and active. And importantly, we're able to offer these options not just when we may have a particular class already scheduled, but when participants with disabilities choose themselves to get outdoors.
